

APPENDIX 2:

PARENT TAKE HOME PAGES

These are sheets that students can take home daily to help communicate what they are learning at camp to their parents at home.

A few important notes about their use:

1. Why are they in English? Even if parents can't read English, it reinforces for them the sense that their child learned English that day and this was a valuable camp for them to attend.
2. Ideally, take-home sheets will be bilingual. Your hosts should be able to help you with translation. DO NOT use Google translate to translate the content without a native speaker available to edit it.
3. There is also space each day to add any camp announcements. Some camps like to have special theme days where students wear a specific color or dress to match a theme each day. You may also have information about the parent presentation at the end of the week.
4. Typically, you'll need to run off the parent pages after arrival. Most locations won't have the camp announcements finalized ahead of time. Ask what kind of resources are available for duplicating the parent pages.
