

PSALM

5

ive attention to the sound of my cry,
my King and my God, for to you do I pray.
(PSALM 5:2)

STRUCTURE

- v. 1-3 David prays to be heard by God.
- v. 4-6 The Lord does not suffer the wicked to dwell in the congregation.
- v. 7-8 David prays for divine guidance through the liturgy.
- v. 9-10 The Lord does not suffer the wicked to dwell in the congregation.
- v. 11-12 The faithful find divine protection.

AT A GLANCE

- AUTHOR David makes the clear confession in this psalm that though he is the king, the LORD is the King of all.
- MORE TO THE STORY David may be thinking of Ahithophel's rebellion (VERSE 10, 2 SAM. 15:30-37).
- THIS SOUNDS FAMILIAR Saint Paul quotes this psalm in Rom. 3:13
- INWARDLY DIGEST This psalm is cited twice in the Formula of Concord's article on election (FC SD XI:7, 35).

CHRIST IS HERE

Those who take refuge in the Lord rejoice and receive protection — it is as though the blood of Christ is being spread out over the faithful, giving them righteousness and inspiring them to sing His praise.

CHRIST

Those who take refuge in the Lord rejoice and receive protection — it is as though the blood of Christ is being spread out over the faithful, giving them righteousness and inspiring them to sing His praise.

God does not delight in wickedness (verse 4). This is one of the scriptural proofs that God's foreknowledge of all things does not mean that He desires evil or damnation. Rather, God sees evil in people and justly hates it. Unlike the wicked men, David — and all the faithful — begin each day with a sacrificial prayer and a faithful promise to be that he will be watchful for God's action in the world. David goes back and forth between speaking of the goodness of the Lord and speaking about the wickedness of evil men. Such is the daily, if not hourly, pattern of the Christian: goodness and mercy follow us, but in the midst of God's protection, we see evil men everywhere in the world. Our refuge is in Christ and not this world.

PSALM PRAYER

O Lord, the hope of our salvation, receive the prayers of those who call upon You. You who uncover what is hidden, give ear to the cries of our hearts. Those things for which we tremble to have committed and blush to confess, O King, forgive in Your mercy and blot out by Your goodness. As our supplication rises to You in the morning, let the good gifts of Your mercy descend on us early; through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.
