* Chart A - Having declined in baptized members in the 1970s, the Pacific Southwest District was able to stop and even reverse the decline through the 1990s. Since 1999, however, there has been a steady decline in both baptized and confirmed membership.

* Chart A - There is a noticeable jump in the total number of congregations in 1990, this was the year after the California, Southern District became Pacific Southwest.

* Chart B - While the boost in congregations in 1990 can also be seen slightly in membership numbers, there is, surprisingly, a noticeable drop in the total number of parish pastors that year.

* Chart B - The Pacific Southwest District is one of only a few districts that has as roughly comparable numbers of parish pastors and congregations.
